Instructions

The following questions will contain medical and other life scenarios. Please answer HONESTLY how you would feel for each scenario, and make decisions assuming you are not strictly following specific rules or regulations. Your answers will remain anonymous.

Organ Donation Scenarios

These questions will ask your thoughts about ORGAN DONATION. Please consider the following information about organ donations when making your decisions.

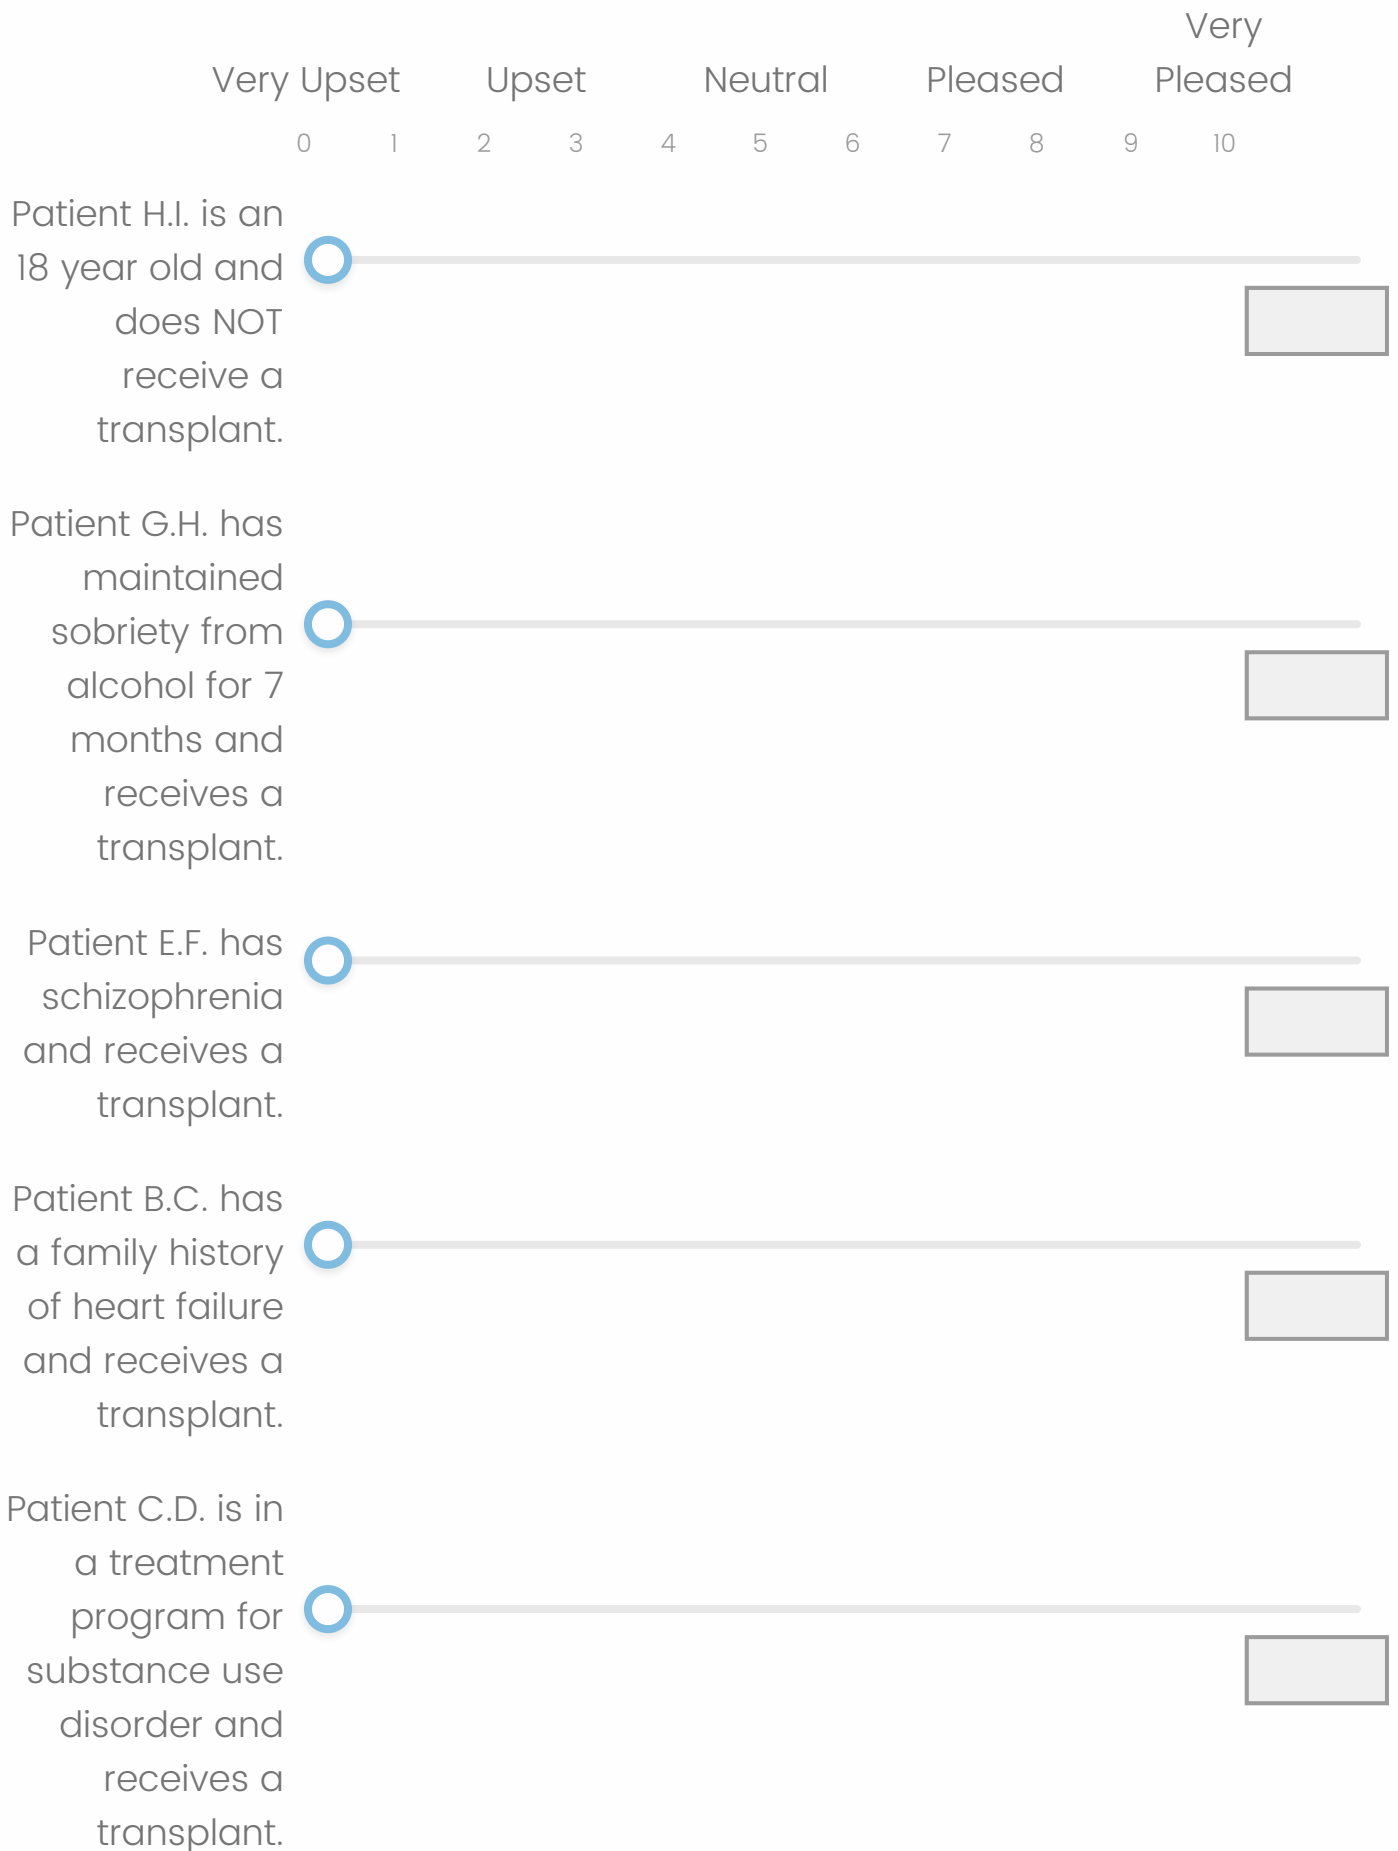

- A large team of professionals from several medical areas discuss whether a patient may be eligible for consideration of a transplant.
- Patients must pass a series of medical tests, support structure questions, and interviews asking how well they would be able to take care of the new organ.
- Patients who pass this process are then placed on an organ waiting list.
- Patients wait for an organ until they need it most or are determined to have the best chance of survival after receiving the organ.
- Patients are matched with the best organ based on several medical factors, organ size, and physical location.
- Not everyone that needs an organ will get one.

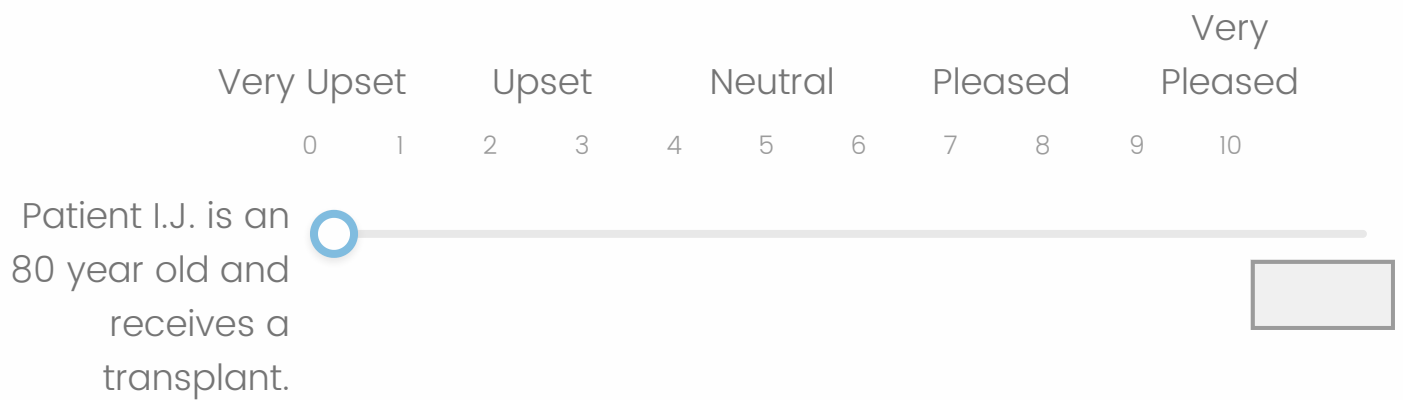

Assume the following patients need an ORGAN TRANSPLANT. Assume all patients equally need the transplant and family support, financial, and geography aspects are the same. The only thing that makes the patients different is the information given below.

Please rate your feelings about each outcome on a scale of VERY UPSET to VERY PLEASED. Assume each outcome has no effect on the other outcomes listed in this section.
